D. Update and discussion on goals and timeline.

The group had a discussion on and made updates to Goal 5 and Goal 6. (See attachment 1)

The group also discussed the importance of more minorities applying to be appointed to Boards and Commissions and running for elected office in Farmington. They discussed the cost of running for different offices and C.J. Thomas, Town Council Chair, shared that the cost can be as much as $3,000 for signage, but is often times much less. Edward Giannaros offered to draft a letter on behalf of the Taskforce to the political parties encouraging increased recruitment, and Town staff said they would also be willing to create a campaign to raise awareness of openings on Boards and Commissions.

Jessica Harrison asked about Title 1 Grant money given to Farmington Schools by the State of Connecticut. This grant is given to assist with students with socio-economic disadvantages. She inquired how the funds were being used. Anna Savastano said that she believed the Board of Education had a report on that information and that she would reach out to them.

Kory Vincent discussed the ways the Farmington Police engages the community. He shared that they have one School Resource Officer at the Highschool and two officers at the lower schools. District officers also visit the schools regularly to fully integrate in the school community. They assist with Security drills and Spirit Days. Since the pandemic started, the police have done many community parades, with as many as seventeen done in a single week. They also participate in FUNCOPS, a grant-funded program that allows police officers and students to engage in activities together. Kory asked the group for more suggestions to engage the community. One of the suggestions was increasing more casual interactions, like stopping to play ball with children. Another suggestion was increasing programs for students to learn about policing and hopefully get more children interested at a younger age.

The Taskforce had a discussion on the Police Department's recruitment process and ways they weed out White Supremacists and other unfit candidates. Kory explained the rigorous process to become a Farmington police officer, which includes full background checks and a neighborhood visit asking neighbors about potential candidates. The Department feels that by asking neighbors instead of just friends they are more likely to get a true picture of the candidate. They also review the internet footprint and perform a physical, written and psych exam.

The makeup of the Farmington Police Department is 69% White men, 24% White women, 3.6% Black men and 2.4% Hispanic or other men. The group had a discussion on the ways to increase the number of Black candidates that apply to these positions. Kory explained that one of the largest drawbacks is that it is hard to predict when a position will become available so doing targeted recruitments is more difficult.

E. Public Comment.

(Submitted via Zoom Chat)

Joshua Kellett, Farmington

Mr. Kellett asked the Taskforce the following:

- How assured are you that within your training and staffing we are weeding out white nationalists and racists amongst the force? and that it is actively condemned if it does occur? Or rather, how can we assure public parents, POC children and teens of this rigorous process?
- Is there data from businesses who have applied and withdrawn, or those who have shown interest so we can see whom and at what point we lost potential vendors?

Lisa Arenivaz-Humbarger, Farmington

Ms. Arenivaz-Humbarger asked the Taskforce the following:

- Is the Farmington Police Department willing to do a Unity March with People of Color (PoC) and others when the COVID-19 situation allows for it?

F. the next meeting. (Please bring your calendar.)

The next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, December 2, 202 at 6:30 P.M.

G. Adjournment.

Upon a motion made and seconded (Giannaros/McLaurin) the meeting was adjourned at 8:42 P.M.

Respectfully Submitted,
